

THE KINGS
HEAD

— Letheringsett —

WELCOME

A BRIEF HISTORY

by Margaret Bird, Kingston upon Thames

The King's Head has been open for business in this part of the village from the early 18th century and possibly earlier. The present building dates from March 1808.

MOVING THE HOUSE

Until then it had stood gable-end to the main road beside the Letheringsett maltings and brewery (themselves dating from before 1720) on roughly the spot where the inn sign now stands. Early that year William Hardy junior (1770-1842), the maltster and brewer who lived at Letheringsett Hall, diverted the course of the main road south, creating the great bend for his new gardens.

The pub was in the way so he demolished it in February 1808. It was one of more than 25 outlets, which he owned; he also supplied another 20 without any pub tie.

DESIGNED BY AN ARCHITECT AND BRIDGE-BUILDER

The style of the present building of 1808 shows the hand of William's architect William Mindham (1771-1843), of Wells and Holt. He designed and built the malt-kilns by the road bridge and many buildings in Holt. He also built the first Foundry Bridge across the Wensum close by the present Norwich railway station; also the road bridge here in Letheringsett.

THE VILLAGE LOCK-UP AND HUB

Two of the long-serving innkeepers in the 18th and early 19th centuries were also the elected parish constables in the days long before there was any police force. The pub therefore served as the village lock-up when offenders were waiting to be brought before the magistrates.

It was the hub of village life from its earliest days. Clubs, parish ratepayers' meetings, harvest suppers, tithe frolics; they all happened here, as with most other inns and alehouses in the past. Badger-baiting and shooting matches are recorded here around 1800. Banquets, known as election suppers, were held during general election campaigns - funded by the candidates!

A DIARY WRITTEN JUST ACROSS THE ROAD

We know a great deal about what happened here from the diary of Mary Hardy, William's mother. She recorded the work of the farm, maltings and brewery in great detail from 1781 to her death in 1809 and we can read about life in the village and much further afield in the full text edited by Margaret Bird and published in 2013. Four commentary volumes, Mary Hardy and her World, were published in 2020. www.burnham-press.co.uk

The Glaven named after the river which flows for 17 km through one of the most beautiful valleys in England. Rising from tiny headwaters in lower Bodham and Baconsthorpe, the main river begins just below Selbrigg Pond where three streams combine at the outfall. Thereafter, it descends through wooded hills of glacial debris and passes through lush countryside and picturesque flint villages. Finally, the river meets the sea behind Blakeney Point.

The Glaven is surrounded by arable land, coniferous plantations, grazing meadows and wetlands. The river is a haven for wildlife - providing a habitat for sea trout, white clawed crayfish, insects and invertebrates such as damselflies, dragonflies and hawkers. The critically endangered European Eel has also been recorded in this river.

ROOM 2 SUPER KING, CAN BE USED AS TWIN

The Bayfield named after Bayfield Hall a Grade II listed building which stands in a small estate close to the village of Letheringsett and the hamlet of Glandford. The house that stands today was built in the last part of the 18th Century replacing an earlier manor house thought to have been built in the 16th Century. That house had been constructed as an early medieval manor house.

The house seen today is a late 18th century Georgian style construction built on a rectangular plan with a service wing running off to rear facing east forming a right angle to the body of the house.

The name Bayfield devolved from the Anglo-Saxon language and has the means Open Field. Bayfield Hall stands next to the ruins of the medieval church of Saint Margaret which once was the parish church.

The Watermill, Riverside Road, Letheringsett NR25 7YD is over two hundred years old and was first mentioned in the Domesday Book. The structure was built in 1802 but there were other mills on the site all of which burnt down. Richard Rouse built the mill that stands today. He made it twice the size of any of the former mills in order for it to house four sets of grind stones. The mill was fitted with an iron wheel so that it was capable of driving the four sets of stones, two of which are still working.

The mill now is recognized as one of the great Norfolk mills and their flour and bread is sought after all over the country. Now that the mill is virtually fully restored the mill turns over an average of three and a half tons of flour a week. The mill grinds three types of flour all grown from English wheat. It sells its flour to customers far and wide and some has even been exported to Russia and New Zealand.

The Watermill next door is open for visitors 11am to 3pm Monday to Friday & 9am to 1pm on Saturday.

ROOM 4 DOUBLE

The Malting which was a brewery and has been in existence on this site since 1721. The maltings expert and architectural historian Amber Patrick, in a report of 1996, described the building as a maltings 'of national importance' for its scale and its early date.

The diarist Mary Hardy and her husband William came to live in Letheringsett to run the business. They converted the malt-mill and brewery to water power in 1784, using the force of the River Glaven just downstream of the watermill.

Mechanisation represented a significant move for the brewer. He created a channel from the River Glaven to run under the Malthouse and into the brewery yard before heading south under the main road to re-join the river. The large waterwheel under the malt-mill, was destroyed in the brewery fire of 1936.

IT'S GOT BE SEASONAL, FRESH AND SOURCED FROM LOCAL PRODUCERS

We love seasonal produce and are very fortunate to be situated in a beautiful part of the world with lots of fabulous food suppliers on our doorstep.

Chef's menus are built around what can be sourced locally, including coastal fish, Brancaster mussels and oysters landed just at the bottom of the marshes of our sister establishments The White Horse and The Jolly Sailors in Brancaster Staithe, Norfolk. We source quality game from the parkland nearby when in season, homegrown produce from local farmers and lots of foraged finds from local contacts.

Our menu changes regularly and is created around the best seasonal pickings on offer. We have a choice of different menus so you will always find something to tickle your fancy. The result is a menu that constantly changes and consistently delights.

EMERGENCY PROCEDURES

Here are some important pieces of information, let's hope you never need to use.

Emergency in event of fire: The warning for fire on these premises is the sound of a siren. The assembly point is at the top of car park at the front of building. Please familiarise yourself with the exit routes and doors which are clearly marked. You will see a map on the back of your room door.

On discovering a fire: Sound the fire alarm by operating the nearest alarm point. Only if the fire is small, attack it with the firefighting equipment provided but do not take any personal risk. If in doubt, close the door to the room in which the fire has occurred and (if possible) make your own way to the assembly point.

Fire prevention: prevent all possible causes of fire, all rooms are non-smoking inside, never obstruct a fire door, fire risks should be drawn to the attention of the management, fire doors should not be wedged open.

Emergency Contact Numbers can be found by the front door.
